

Things that an employee wants from his ORGANIZATION

Updated Workplace Technology

```
graph TD; A[Updated Workplace Technology] --> B[Greater Flexibility]; B --> C[A Clear Career Trajectory]; C --> D[Continuing Education Opportunities]; D --> E[transparency of the organization]; E --> F[compensation on their work];
```

Greater Flexibility

A Clear Career Trajectory

Continuing Education Opportunities

transparency of the organization

compensation on their work

UPDATED WORKPLACE TECHNOLOGY

A better technique makes you advanced. Advances in technology, artificial intelligence is building a workforce that we need to understand. For this, you have to become advanced. You will need to install a biometric attendance machine for your employees. And good human resource management software that will help you track every activity of your employees.

Greater Flexibility

Having flexibility in your business is a major key to your success. This not only allows the other person to make the choice but then also allows them to take responsibility for their choice. Because if your company is flexible, then your employees will also be happy because they will not have much work pressure and will be able to work with their freedom. And they will be able to give your work on time.

A CLEAR CAREER TRAJECTORY

Career paths and career ladders are two traditional ways by which an employee develops and progresses within an organization. Employees generally feel more engaged when they believe that their employer is concerned about their development and provides avenues to reach personal career goals while fulfilling the company's mission. So if you want to make your company bigger then you have to think about your employees as well.

CONTINUING EDUCATION OPPORTUNITIES

CHANGE

CHANGE

Everyone wants to grow their education. No matter whether you are the owner of the company or are working in it. Every person wants to learn something new. If your employees will always learn something new in your company, then they will never leave your company. And they will also think to make your company bigger. So if you continue to teach your employees something new, then you will also become successful.

TRANSPARENCY OF THE ORGANIZATION

Establishing transparency in the workplace is important for building a company positive, culture, and strengthening employee loyalty and engagement. Transparency in a business is a relationship between employees and management that can be described as two-way openness. When transparency is part of workplace culture, it comes with a high level of trust, communication and employee engagement and advocacy. So if you want to grow your business then make sure that there is transparency in your business.

COMPENSATION ON THEIR WORK

Every employee wants that if he is working overtime, he gets more money with some praise for his extra time so if your employee does something good or does more work for you, then respect him, then he should Give compensation as well. So that next time he does more good. Because these are small ways you can make your business bigger.